Managed hosting provider NeoSpire, a Hosting.com company, and LevelTen Interactive are the organizing sponsors of the Drupal on the Bayou Summit, an event for members of the technology community to be held December 8-9, 2011 at Harrah's in New Orleans, LA. This summit will feature Drupal experts like keynote speaker Angie Byron, Director of Community Development at Acquia, core co-maintainer for Drupal 7.

The Drupal on the Bayou Summit will incorporate technical sessions alongside interactive business and marketing workshops. Drupal on the Bayou will bring together developers, site designers, and business owners, giving them the opportunity to network and share their experience. They will learn not only how to develop and implement a Drupal-based web presence using agile methodologies, but also how the free open source Drupal content management system can be used to create powerful websites. In addition, three-days of pre-Summit training, December 5-7th, will be conducted by LevelTen to help fully immerse those new to Drupal or are looking for a more intense immersion.

Held at Harrah's Hotel in the heart of New Orleans, the world's most exhilarating city, Drupal on the Bayou attendees will be within walking distance of the Dixieland Jazz, beignets and 'les bon temps' (the good times) in the French Quarter. Known as The Big Easy for its relaxed and fun loving atmosphere, New Orleans is the perfect city for our December event.

All of the meeting spaces and the exhibition area are located on the same floor of the hotels which will allow the attendees to hang out, chat about their love of Drupal, have lively conversations, and interact with other attendees and the exhibitors. For more information about the event, please visit the website: <http://www.drupalonthebayou.com/>.
